Miyosin Nokhom Home Visitation Lead

Location:	Calgary
Position Type:	Full time
Hours:	Monday – Friday (37.5 hours/ week)
Program:	Family Resource Network

Position Summary:

Miskanawah (meaning "many little paths" in Cree) is an Indigenous-led organization offering supportive services grounded in cultural traditions and teachings. We believe that children, youth, and families thrive in culturally responsive communities.

The Indigenous Home Visitation Lead is a key leadership role, responsible for overseeing and mentoring the Home Visitation team while ensuring the delivery of culturally grounded, family-centered services. This role emphasizes the importance of relationship-building, community connections, and a holistic approach to supporting families.

Grounded in the teachings of Wahkotiwin, the Indigenous Home Visitation Lead ensures families feel valued, respected, and supported as they work toward building safe, healthy, and nurturing environments for their children. Through strong leadership, program coordination, and a focus on cultural teachings, this role plays a vital part in enhancing family wellness and community resilience.

This position is ideal for a strong leader who is committed to honoring Indigenous knowledge, supporting families, and fostering community resilience. The successful candidate will combine cultural teachings with innovative leadership to enhance the impact of the Indigenous Home Visitation program.

Responsibilities:

- Supervise, mentor, and support the Home Visitation team to ensure high-quality, culturally sensitive service delivery.
- Develop and implement work plans that align with program goals and cultural values, focusing on supporting families through individualized home visitation services.
- Integrate the teachings of Wahkotiwin and Indigenous ways of knowing into all aspects of program delivery and team leadership.
